

WORKSHOP FEATURING MARY ROBSON

Thursday, January 31, 2019

Beyond Disciplines: Mapping the Knowledge

4 p.m. - 6 p.m.

Center for Spatial Studies, 3512 Phelps Hall

This workshop is aimed at graduate students and faculty interested in mapping their knowledge of their discipline and its relationship to other disciplines. Each participant is invited to create their own blueprint or ground plan of their knowledge; what they know, where they've got to in previous work, and where they see themselves going in their future work. The resulting plans, diagrams and mind-maps are then the focus of conversations in small groups. Refreshments will be provided

ABOUT MARY ROBSON

Mary Robson is Creative Facilitator to the Institute of Medical Humanities at the University of Durham. Trained as a theater designer, her work includes convening and running research groups of large, interdisciplinary projects, and working with researchers and research participants to make creative outputs: as producer/director of short films, participatory theatre pieces, audio pieces, and arts workshops. She places a particular emphasis on interdisciplinarity and transferable methodology. Mary's recent work as a creative facilitator also includes projects with Exeter University, Trinity College Dublin and Kings College London.

Mary has received a Royal Society of Public Health award for 'innovative and outstanding contributions to arts and health'.
